CURRENT COMMENTS

A PORKING PACKING PLANT

Some time ago it was announced that we were going to have government-owned pork packing establishments in different parts of Alberta, but apparently the matter has been allowed to drop, whether from the apathy on the part of the promoters or the inability of the government to carry out its proposed scheme. It was thought at that time that government pork packing establishments situate in convenient places would have been a great boon to the farmer and an impetus to the hog raising industry. Since that time, brought on, no doubt, by the three successive years' grain crop failures, the farmer has gone more into the hog raising industry—some in a small way, it is true, but most on a very much larger scale. No farm nowadays is complete without its quota of porkers rooting around—here the greater need for these pork packing plants has greatly multiplied as being a safe and profitable outlet for the greatly increased production of the porker. At the present time Cayley isлагging for stock yards. Why not include in the scheme provisions for a large pork packing establishment? Stock yards and a pork packing plant would go well hand in hand. An independent plant, in addition to Pat Burns' establishment would make a healthy competition. There is no doubt the porker has come stay on the farm, and there is every reason to believe that the supply will always be equal to the demand. It is well worth thinking about.

"Calgary is destined to be a wonderful city," says Hon. Roy. We have always thought it had been so for some time past.

New York Life: Is the young man all right that is going to marry your daughter? "I have reason to believe so. He has been audited by the audit company, assayed by the local chemist, tested by the state bacteriologist and appraised by the medical and surgical staff of the county hospital."

Prince Albert Times: The city would be better to-day and for many days to come if every man and woman, too, would register a vow to do absolutely the use of two phrases for even a single month—financial stringency and money tightness. They are being repeated with such parrot-like frequency by some people that the sound and sight of them are getting positively abhorrent.

A deal was closed on Friday in which the Farmers' Co-operative Elevator Association of Alberta purchased the Alberta Pacific elevator at Langton for several thousand dollars. This is the first elevator to be operated under the provisions of the act passed at the last session of the legislature, authorizing the formation of a co-operative farmers' elevator company. It was considered by the company that difficulties would be experienced in securing a good site for the elevator, and instead of building one at Langton, the purchase of one already there was made.

It is reported that the C. N. R. may take over the A. & G. W. railway. Another of 'tite' ter's schemes to run and dispose of this white elephant.

The calling of the legislature in September must either mean that Mr. Sifton has something of extraordinary importance to communicate to the House or that he is in such a position that he has to seek speedy help at its hands to enable him to carry on the government. Has a solution of the A. & G. W. muddle been obtained at last?

How a Farmer Cared for His Hogs
As hog raising is becoming a real live question among the farmers in this section we shall at all times be pleased to publish the experience of others on this important question that may be a benefit to other farmers. Any helps that we can come across from any of our exchanges or otherwise we intend to publish in the hopes that we can come across along the good work along this part—or any other part—of the

Speaking of the National Insurance Act in Great Britain, Sir John Collie, member of the government advisory committee, says the greatest trouble in administering the new law seems to come from the indication of many workers to sham sickness.

All the sickness shamers do not reside in Great Britain, particularly when there is any work in sight.

mixed farming industry.—Editor.

The following is from the experience of a large hog breeder:

My plan in taking care of my Chester White hogs is to keep my brood sows just as thrifly a condition as possible at all times. In fact, I strive to do with all classes of swine. I sort the hogs as to size and age and keep them in small pasture lots, I let them run out all the time as I am a great believer in hogs having plenty of exercise. They must have this to do well. I plan to feed them a variety of stuff and to feed them regularly, believing that their stomachs need attention just as well as those of human beings.

My breeding sows are kept in a yard by themselves. I do not shut them up until farrowing time approaches. Sometimes I keep them in a pen a day or two beforehand, but I very frequently permit them to run out with the other sows. I am convinced that the sow should be shut up by herself and fed about some time before and some days after farrowing. After the pigs come the sow should not be fed much for a few days else the pigs will scour and some of them may die. After two or three days the sow should have her feed the same as before farrowing. Provide plenty of room for exercise at all time for the sow as well as the pigs.

When the pigs are a month old or so they will eat a little and a little swill. After the pigs are eight weeks old I wean them. The sow will then not be giving much milk, and the pigs will do better if shut off by themselves and properly feed. Give these weaning pigs a warm place to sleep in, plenty of water at all times, good feed, and you will be surprised to see how fast they will weigh 50 lb at two month old and at three months they will weigh from 70 to 90 pounds. One of my seven month pigs weighed 270 pounds and was good enough to take the blue ribbon in a class of 44 at the Illinois state fair.

I keep my hogs by themselves and feed them well.

I try to provide swine pasture as fully as I can.

PRESIDENT SUSPENDER NONE SO EASY

Wanted to be Realistic She could not see his face as he left and asked her to be his. She was not sure if he had the right to know how much suffering he refused caused him.

She was so gently as she asked that their lives could not be linked together that although she admired him and his ideals she could not see it would be risking his future as well as her own to have any affinity with him. It was a touching speech, and she was sure that he was right.
She did not know if he was taking notes in shorthand. When she had hooked his pocket and his tie his hand, he remarked gently:

"I never and ever so much obliged to you."

"Well, I will do it nicely, and I'm under a thousand obligations. I'm writing a novel, and I have a scene in which the hero is a man who is a bit of a rascal, but who is good at heart. It was anxious to avoid the stereotyped style of depicting such incidents and made up his mind to do it in a new way. The girl I have proposed to, and every one I have ever met accepted me, if you had any idea that I'd be none more completely disengaged."

KRUGER RELICS Have Been Transported From Holland to a Transvaal Museum

Certain relics of Paul Kruger are to have a resting place in a Transvaal museum, after a long and protracted appeal decision at the Hague. Judgment was given in the appeal brought by the Transvaal government against the action instituted by Dr. Leyds and various Boer leaders for the recovery of the personal effects and valuables and other objects of interest left by Paul Kruger which formed the basis of the collection of relics established by Mr. Nyland at Dordrecht.

The court upheld the provisional decision of the Dordrecht court which refused the application of the Boer leaders, but Dr. Leyds' application to be admitted. The objects have been transported to South Africa.

His Name was George

The next door neighbor carefully surveilled the bride of two weeks, chopping her firewood in the back garden, she remarked, and forthwith proceeded to the key to keep husbands down.

But Mrs. Morgan, stammered in her excitement, was the absent one, George has more important things on his mind than chopping firewood.

And haven't you snapped the wedding ring? Right, advised Mrs. Morgan, the bride blushing a little. All I have on my mind is George.

Do you have a good night's

No, I didn't, replied the Kansas very well, for I was afraid some one would break in. I was afraid to go to my only door to it was through my room, so I lay down and waited.

Come here, Phoebe, was the impulsive command of another housewife in the community room. I want to see you.

Yassum! answered Phoebe, wiping her eyes with an apron.

She sat down in a chair, said the mistress, pointing to the furiture. It is literally covered with dust.

Yassum! promptly replied the impulsive Phoebe, whose body hasn't set in lately.

My son! This is disgraceful. Your school report shows that you are the last in the class of twenty-two, and you have been worse, father, in what way?

There might have been more boys than you, but I am the last in the class.

What's that you do? play chess? It is great fun. First you make a dust ring.

Well, I'll get the sawdust, dad told her. Just saw some

Best Weight to Kill Pigs

Experiments made for the purpose of determining the economic weight of a pig show conclusively that he should never be fed beyond eight or nine months old, and the largest profit is found, as a rule, in a weight not exceeding 200 pounds. What is known as the food of support, says a writer in Farm and Home, plays a very important part in the profit or loss of large weights. Suppose, as many farmers say, that a pig is not to be killed until it reaches 300 pounds. He must take from his food an increasing amount each day to support or maintain the weight already gained or else drop back. The experiments indicate that two per cent. of the live weight in food must be taken each day to support that live weight. If the animal weighs 300 pounds this amounts to six pounds of food daily or over 40 pounds per week, and as the profit is the food that is applied to make new weight it results that over 40 pounds of food are consumed per week from which no profit whatever is reaped. It follows that the most money can be made from young hogs killed at a medium weight.

The torture of an ill-fitting shoe will bring about a state of irritability often resembling nervous prostration. This condition often becomes habitual.

At their last meeting the councilors of L. I. D. No. 159, very wisely drew attention to the growing evil of the noxious weed, and all the councilors were empowered to order these weeds destroyed wherever found in that district. It should not be necessary for such an order, for the farmer and all others who neglect to destroy these noxious weeds is not only a great sufferer himself, but is doing a grievous wrong to his neighbor, and, in fact, to the whole neighborhood; therefore, swat the noxious weed, Mr. Farmer, every time you can.
